

MASTER BUILDER

I love challenges and realize that in order to succeed in business, you must be creative. There is a real opportunity to change the face of business through emerging markets because we can take a leadership role in shaping the way the market is created. Research, policy, industry partnerships, best practices, and teamwork are some of my favorite tools to make the changes needed.

We help brave people build revolutionary businesses.

HANDS-ON SPECIALTIES

EXPERIENCE

- 1 Hands down, one of the things I do best is raise capital through multiple avenues and channels: debt, equity, traditional, and non-traditional financing. In the past three years, I have raised over $20 million in capital for my clients.
- 2 I have been involved in some form of light manufacturing for more than 10 years including: biodiesel, beer, cider, and kombucha. I have a deep understanding of cost accounting and how the process works from the manufacturing floor to the board room.
- 3 I spent a few years as a Farm Manager, cultivating dozens of acres of organic fruits and vegetables in Colorado and North Carolina. This drives my passion for commodities and my respect for the farmers that drive the industries that rely on these agricultural products.

ABOUT

I am determined - determined to get it done. My favorite part of Blue Wing is being able to work side by side with the client in order to accomplish their mission and vision. Light manufacturing is grueling, gritty work, but what makes me - and the Blue Wing team - different is that we enjoy the work. The work is extremely gratifying.

You can measure your success through jobs created, efficiencies improved, product quality, and newly developed partnerships. But most importantly, through improved company morale.
